

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A signal level detector comprises a first voltage/current conversion circuit which outputs a first current which depends on a voltage amplitude of 5 an inputted signal, a second voltage/current conversion circuit which outputs a second current which depends on an inputted reference voltage signal, and a comparison circuit which compares the first current with the second current and outputs an output current based on a 10 comparison result.